RHUGGLING A DEAD MAN THROUGH PROM PLORIDA TO JERSEY.

A Railroad Conductor's Reminiscences of Consumptives He Has Carried to the South Alive and Brought Back in Boxes.

"I wonder how soon he will be shipped back by express?" meditated a railroad man last night, as a muffed up figure passed painfully along the platform of the Baltimore and Potomac depot on its way to the southern express.

"Do you see many Florida invalida some back that way?" asked a REPUBLI-CAN reporter.

"From three to five a week in good seasons, and sometimes as many as hat in a day. Some die on the way there and a few on the return trip, but at the places 'cracked up' as consumption cures the coffin trade is lively, I tell you, while the 'curers' are called embalmers, and go down there every season with the Fush of sick men and women. Appeal is made in the report for another family building to accommodate the increased number of inmates, and also the increased number of inmates, and also for a chapel structure. These would enable the school at very little in-crease of expense to increase the number of inmates, some of whom, for lack of room, are sent to the district jail for short terms, a most injurious and hardening experience for any youth. The number of inmates since the open-

Thinking to-day of the years I was a member of your institution. I thought that I would let you know that I am doing excellently, being a printer by trade and making from $20 to $25 a week. When I left your institution I was connected with the tailoring department. When I arrived at Leadville I went to work at the tailoring business, and by the propriete not raising my salary in work at the tailoring business, and by the proprietor not raising my salary in the said six months I stopped work at that place and wont to work in a printing office as "devil," and I have been working at the business ever since, and to-day I at the business ever since, and to-day I am a very good printer; competent to work in any office in the United States, and yet I am only 16 years of age. I was a member of your institution for nearly seven years, and I am very glad that I was, because I learned to work, and that is what I would not have learned if my father had not put me in your school. Believe me, Mr. Superintendent, that ever since I left your school I have been to work every day, very near (except to work every day, very near (except Sunday), and I have supported my mother and father from the day I left your insti-tution to the day I am writing this letter."

Great Blaze and Little Damage. Little Jessie Pilo accommunied the serrant to the woodshed of her mother's house, No. 913 G street, to get some coal about 8 o'clock last night. She lighted a match, and just before returning to the house threw it on the ground. The match set fire to paper, and the fire was fommunicated to the wood work. The Sames spread rapidly and made a large blaze, which coul be seen from a long distance. An alarm was sounded from box 197, and the fire department was soon on the ground. The fire was thought to on the ground. The fire was thought to be serious at first, and a peneral alarm was torned in. The fire had gained considerable beadway before the arrival of the department, and had spread to the shed of Joseph Kendall, at No. 915, and the two sheds of Alfred Richards, assarly consuming them. The department extinguished the fire in a short time. The blaze attracted a large crowd to the spot, and the poilte had considerable difficulty in keeping them back. The damage was estimated at $200°, fully insured.

RICHMOND, VA., Oct. 24.—At the state fair to-day the principal topic of conver-sation was the competitive drill yesterday for the $1,000 prize. The members of the Richmond Greys, the company that won the second prize of $300, appear to be as thoroughly aroused over the result as were the soldiers from Washington. Many of the Greys do not hesitate to declare that the famous programme of fifty-

MILITARY JUSTICE.

Report of Col. G. N. Lieber, Acting Judge Advocate General.

Acting Judge Advocate General G. N. Lieber, in his annual report to the secretary of war, says that 19 commissioned officers, 7 West Point cadets, 2,342 en-listed men, and 10 military convicts were tried by general courts-martial during the year, making a total of 2,280. For the last five years the number of general courts-martial has been constantly in-creasing. The number of garrison and regimental courts-martial was 10,983. It is recommended that officers absent from their posts in attendance upon a military ourt should receive the same per diem as court should receive the same per tiem as citizen witnesses.

Referring to depositions, the report sug-gests that officers of the army and of the judge advocate general's department and the judge advocates of military courts be the judge advocates of military courts be empowered to administer eaths and take depositions. It is recommended that the law be changed so that a civilian witness will be compelled to testify when brought before a military court. Gen. Lieber gives extracts from the reports of judge advocates of departments in which the recommendations as to enlistments are renewed, and various other subjects are treated of.

A Postoffice Department Statement.

The sixth auditor has prepared a statement of the receipts and disbursements of the postollice department for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1884, from which it appears that the expenditures amounted to $16,41.,772, made up as follows: Third quarter 1883, $11,606,251; fourth quarter 1883, $11,492,965; first quarter 1884, $11,628,958; second quarter 1884, $11,683,596.

028,958; second quarter 1884, $11,683,596. The receipts, exclusive of money order revenue, were $42,518,053, made up by quarters as follows; Third quarter 1883, $10,595,867; fourth quarter 1883, $11,159,618; first quarter 1884, $10,813,568; second quarter 1884, $10,210,582.

The account reveals a deficiency of $3,593,137 for the year, which is attributed to the reduced postal rate. The department last year had a surplus of $2,653,189. This year's deficiency, however, will be reduced about $100,000 by the money order revenues. The result confirms the estimate made by President Archur in his message to the last congress.

An Overcont Thief. About three weeks ago a handsome overcont, valued at $50, was stelen from the house of Mrs. Blankman, No. 413 New York avenue. The cost was the property of Dr. F. G. H. Bradford, who reported its theft. Detectives Cox and Carter dis-covered that a boy named Henry Sohl had sold the cost to a colored shoomaker of No. 457 Massachusetts avenue, named Aaron Carter. Sohi and Carter were ar-rested resterday and looked up. Sohi is also wanted for the largeny of a carriage-triumou's gauge from Mr. Stanley Pearce, of Georgetown.

> The Baltimore and Ohio Scores One. PARIS, TEXAS, Oct. 24.—The court yesterday heard applications for eleven injunctions against the Baltimore and Ohio junctions against the Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph company, brought in the name of farmers and landowners along the Texas and Pacific railroad through this country, to restrain the Baltimore company from erecting its telegraph line along the right of way of that road. The land owners claimed that the condemnation of their land for railroad purposes still left them entitled to damages, now that it was proposed to condemn the land for telegraph purposes. The court refused all these applications on the ground that, while the damage to the plaintiff, if any, was trifling, the damage to the telegraph company would, by stopping the work, be irreparable.

A LUNATIC'S HORRIBLE DEATH.

Confined Like a Beast in a Pen He Is

Frank Bull, a wealthy idiot, whose case had been investigated by the Pennsylvania lunacy commission, was burned to death on Friday last by the farm house and the pen in which he was confined taking fire. The farm is about seven miles from the village of North East, in Erie county, Pennsylvania. At the time of the fire a letter was in the village post-office directed to Volney Bull, the brother of the idiot, giving instructions, which, if carried out, would have averted the terrible accident and saved his own life, had been investigated by the Pennsylvania lunacy commission, was burned to death on Friday last by the farm house and the pen in which he was confined taking fire. The farm is about seven miles from the village of North East, in Erie county, Pennsylvania. At the time of the fire a letter was in the village postoffice directed to Volney Bull, the brother of the idiot, giving instructions, which, if carried out, would have averted the terrible accident and saved his own life, as he will probably die from the burns received in attempting to rescue his brother. The letter referred to was sent by Dr. James Ourt, secretary of the state lunacy commission. It informed Mr. Bull that if he did not at once remove his brother Frank to a hospital for the insane, or the training school at Media, he would be immediately prosecuted. The letter failed of its mission, owing to the great distance from the village postoffice to the farm. The family only send for their mail about once a week.

The Bull case was one of a number reported to the commission of lunacy, and was investigated by Secretary Ourt on Sept. 30 last. The Bulls lived in the village of North East when the case was reported but upon the arrival of the secretary at that place, he found they had moved to the farm. Their farm house was of frame and two stories in height. It contained but few rooms, and, as Bull was a married man with seven children, the bed chambers were all occupied. In order to accommodate the idiotic brother it was found necessary to erect quarters for him. A lot of lumber was secured and a sort of cow-pen was attached to the house. The floor boards were merely laid down and not nailed. The farmiture consisted of a rude bed and a few coverings.

Bull was informed that his brother Bull was informed that his brother must be taken to an asylum or some better provision made for him, but replied that a clause in his father's will required him to take care of him. A few weeks later Dr. Ourt sent to Dr. Putnam, of North East, to learn whether his instructions had been carried out, and ascertained that Frank had been removed to New York and secreted. Voincy was informed that his brother would be taken anywhere in the United States, and when this was made known Frank was brought back. He arrived home on Friday last, and the same night the house burned down and he was killed. His brother attempted to rescue him, and he was badly burned in the attempt. The deceased idiot was worth at least $50,000, and his brother had an equal amount of and his brother had an equal amount of
